Company Profile
Strategy 3 - Capacity building - Promote innovation and adoption, build skills and management capacity.

Our industry workforce invests in skills and management to build on the experience of the current management, availability of new technologies, expectations of the community and the connectivity of the global environment to be positioned better for decision making and improved productivity. Clearer career paths in the livestock industry will be promoted and supported.

- Our target – to build the skills and capacity across the industry for improved decision making.
- Our investment – the investment in the More Sheep Initiative will continue to be a key platform for capacity building and developing ongoing decision making skills.
- The proposed Centre for Sheep Innovation will put greater emphasis on training, mentoring and the development of agribusiness and future researchers.

Strategy 4 - Communication - drive industry and community attitudinal change with a targeted communications strategy.

Creation of a strong brand for the WA sheep industry will influence the minds of its stakeholders to positively influence their key attitudes, beliefs and behaviours. Internal industry communication to our supply chain and external communication to our customers, consumers, and export sector will push a consistent message about the value of WA products. Our aim is to build recognition of the value of the farm sector, to build industry and general public support.

To Get Involved

SILC looks forward to continuing to establish innovative partnership initiatives to implement the WA Sheep Industry Strategic Plan 2025+ in a similar model to the More Sheep Initiative.

In addition to commitment and pledges of resources we welcome feedback to this plan from representatives and individuals across the industry.
